Altar Valley School District 51

ABOUT US

Altar Valley School District (AVSD) is a PK-8 school district located 25 miles southwest of downtown Tucson on State Route 86 / Ajo Highway in the community of Three Points, also called Robles Junction. AVSD encompasses nearly 700 square miles of high Sonoran desert and mountains and is home to two schools with an enrollment of approximately 600 total students. Several near-by attractions, include Saguaro National Park West, Arizona-Sonoran Desert Museum, and the internationally known Kitt Peak National Observatory, which frames the background for AVSD.

HISTORY

Founded in 1928 as a one-room ranch school, the Altar Valley School District has a long, rich, history of generations of families attending and working for the school district. In 1930, Mrs. Mary E. Dill formed the Three Points School and taught at the school named after her for more than twenty years. In 2003, a new school was constructed and named Robles Elementary School. In 1988, the district adopted the name of the expansive valley in which it lies, Altar Valley, and for which our middle school is named.
